HUMAN CENTERED DESIGN

AN INTRODUCTION

SCENARIOS OF USE

The following Scenarios of Use help to outline how you might find yourself using this toolkit for innovation. The first two scenarios utilize the principle of finite timeframes to frame the entire challenge, while the latter two demonstrate how small sections of the toolkit can be used to provide motivation, concrete goals, and a path to getting unstuck in longer-term programs.

SCENARIO 1: THE WEEK-LONG DEEP DIVE

This mode of engagement forces the design team to work quickly to gather and analyze data, then move rapidly to solutions, prototypes and plans. The one-week timeframe is a familiar timeframe that is long enough to gain good understanding, yet short enough to allow a stressed organization to put limited resources against a challenge. This format is good for early-phase learning and for spurring new thinking.

Use When You:

» Need to learn about a new area or challenge quickly.
» Need to kick-start thinking about a long-standing intractable problem.
» Want to refresh the thinking of the staff.

Pull Out and Use:

» All sections of the Toolkit in sequence.

TIP

Know the limitations of your data and your early prototypes when doing a Week-Long Deep Dive. If validity is necessary without much time for research, use secondary data to triangulate your findings. Build a plan for iterating early prototypes for future refinement.

War imminent as deadline set to expire tonight

Knight Ridder News Service

SOMEWHERE IN KUWAIT — Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein — defiant and dressed for battle — Tuesday rejected President Bush's demand that he flee into exile. White House officials called it Saddam's "final mistake."

The 48-hour deadline imposed by the United States arrives at 8 p.m. EST today. War could explode at any moment after that — or sooner if Saddam is caught preparing to use nerve gas or seems ready to destroy dams or oil fields.

A U.S.-led invasion force of 300,000 troops awaits the order to attack.

SADDAM SUPPORTERS Iraqis demonstrate their support for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Tuesday during a rally in Baghdad.

"It's a good thing we're going to do," Lt. Gen. William S. Wallace, the commander of U.S. and allied ground forces, told troops in Kuwait just before they moved to within 30 miles of Iraq. "It's a noble thing we're going to do."

Now on the cusp of war overseas, the United States also stands at the second-highest level of alert at home.

In Washington, authorities expressed new concern about terrorist attacks against Americans at home and abroad, and the Agriculture Department told farmers and food processors to monitor the nation's food supply more closely.

"Iraqi state agents, Iraqi surrogate groups, other regional extremist organizations and ad hoc groups or disgruntled individuals may use this time period to conduct terrorist attacks against the United States," Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge said.

What is Your Mobile?

My Mobile Is…

- My planner
- My task list
- My memory
- My encyclopedia
- My product finder
- My news service

- But is MY mobile phone really mine?
- If you were starting over what would your mobile do and be?

Sketch... your ideal mobile device.

Don’t think too much. Put your pen to paper and start drawing.

4:00

Sample Questions

Who is in your contact list?

What other things do you carry with you?

Have you ever noticed someone else's mobile device? What about it did you notice?

Can you do your job without your mobile device? Why or why not?

How does it help you conduct your business?

When do you use your mobile device?

What is irreplaceable?

When did you acquire this mobile device? Why?

Mobile Device Stories

How would you feel if your mobile device were stolen?

Tell me about the most important communication made with this mobile device.

How do you carry your mobile device? Navigate it?

How often do you change mobile devices

If I used your mobile device for a day, what might I notice?

Interview... to gain empathy.

Ask your partner for stories about his/her life told through the contents of his/her mobile device.

4+4=8:00

Who is your user?	What does he or she need in a mobile device?	What does the mobile device mean to them?
Other notes:

Define... your point of view.

Use the insights gathered from your interview to fill in the blanks and draft a point of view.

insight/meaning

_____ .

Ideate... visualize alternatives.

Sketch at least 3 different ideas that would meet the needs define by your point of view.

6:00

Test... to gather feedback.

3+3=6:00

Briefly walk your partner through your sketches. As your partner reacts, capture their feedback and changes directly on your sketches. Make modifications as you go!

Iterate... with a physical mockup.

6:00

Build your design out the basic physical features of the phone and its interface.

Test... to gather feedback.

3+3=6:00

Briefly walk your partner through your sketches. As your partner reacts, capture their feedback and changes directly on your sketches. Make modifications as you go!

Define... your point of view.

1:00

Use the insights gathered from your interview to fill in the blanks and draft a point of view.

Revised

_____ mobile device is his/her _____

Reflect...

3+3=6:00

Partner reacts to prototype. Capture feedback and make new sketches as you go!

Consider:

- Were your mobile sketch and your prototype the same?
- Why were they different?
- How much did your mock-up tests change your understanding?
- What would happen if you did another iteration?
- How might you continue this iterative process?
- How is this different from a traditional project approach?
- When did you feel most confident/least confident?

Feedback (New sketch):

Reflections:

What could you learn by studying your users?

Which of your products need testing?

Alexandre Dumas père
The Count of Monte Cristo begged the commune of Marseilles to give them this bare and barren promontory, where, like the sailors of old, they had run their boats ashore. The request was granted; and three months afterwards, around the twelve or fifteen small vessels which had brought these gypsies of the sea, a small village sprang up. This village, constructed in a singular and picturesque manner, half Moorish, half Spanish, still remains, and is inhabited by descendants of the first comers, who speak the language of their fathers. For three or four centuries they have remained upon this small promontory, on which they had settled like street of this little village, and enter with us one of the houses, which is sunburned to the beautiful dead-leaf color peculiar to the buildings of the country, and within coated with whitewash, like a Spanish posada. A young and beautiful girl, with hair as black as jet, her eyes as velvety as the gazelle's, was leaning with her back against the wainscot, rubbing in her slender delicately moulded fingers a bunch of heath blossoms, the flowers of which she was picking off and strewing on the floor; her arms, bare to the elbow, brown, and modelled after those of the Arlesian

WHAT'S THIS?

BOBBY RUSH

Congressman Bobby L. Rush has spent most of his life fighting for everyday people. He believes that the constitutional promise of equality, liberty, and justice for all Americans must be upheld to make our nation strong. He has represented the First Congressional District of Illinois for almost two decades.

Alex Davis' walk-off single off of Pepper Gay boosted Minnesota to a 3-2 win over Illinois Davis got on base two times in the game for Minnesota (31-24). She also drove in one inning.
Sara Moulton kept Illinois (27-22) off the base paths, recording 10 strikeouts. The Golde earned runs, five hits and three walks over seven innings.
Gay didn't have her stuff going on the rubber for the Fighting Illini and was charged with walked seven, struck out three, and allowed three runs.
It didn't take long for Minnesota to answer as it scored one run of its own in the third. Th groundout by Kari Dorle.
Illinois tied the game in the fifth when Jessica Davis reached on an error, bringing home
